

An object of the present invention is to provide a material which can absorb moisture with ease and certainly, which exists in an equipment such as an electronic device. The invention relates to a moisture absorbing formed body comprising a hygroscopic agent and a resinous component.